

Panel b stops after two rows.

Of the 12 datasets audited, 2 carry node-level labels against which an attribution can be scored. For the other 10 — every real molecular property dataset in the sweep — no such labels are published, so only panel a can be computed at all. Faithfulness is auditable everywhere; correctness almost nowhere.